A person can find the most interesting quirks in language from the most unlikely places. I have a copy of the Jewish New Testament at home. In the back of it there is a page titled "Pronouncing Explanatory Glossary". A portion of the paragraph on pronunciation reveals what I believe to be a major clue as to the immigration place of Marcus Aberholsz and his Ermentrout wife. It states: "The pronunciation shown for Hebrew and Aramaic is that used in Israel; Ashkenazic (German and eastern European) pronunciations common in English-speaking countries often shift "a" sounds towards "o", turn some "t's" to "s's", and accent the next-to-last syllable where the Israelis accent the last."

What this is implying is that Marcus Aberholsz ( MV Marcus Overholt) did not shift their name to the O in Oberholtz because they were not living in Germany, north or east Switzerland, or eastern Europe. The family evidently came from another area of the Reformation world. In the last OFA Bulletin, a quote from Andreas Fronhaus showed that there are no towns of Aberholtz in the German speaking lands. Both language and geography hints now point the immigration of Marcus Overholt to somewhere outside of the Ashkenazic lands.

There is a third hint recently uncovered as to the ancestry of MV Marcus Overholt. One of our OFA members, Lova, has given some DNA connections of her Overholt husband. Some of his bloodline connects with the South African Oberholsters who immigrated there in 1696 from Germany. A Christian Oberholtzer became superintendent of the huge diamond mine in Johannesburg. What we know of the original South African O Lines follow:

There are two strands of the surname. The one entered the country from Cape Town and due to the native speak of the cape colourds the surname was changed into Oberholtzer, Oberholtser and Oberholster.

The others came from Namibia (then Duits Wes) and entered the country from the north. They were settled on a farm, Marico Bosveld, in northern Transvaal (as it was then known), long before the great trek from the cape to the north of South Africa started. The farm was in our family until two generations ago, when my granddad sold it.

- Marinda Kotze, Kotzemarinda_kotze@usa.net, 6/6/2000

Dr J J Oberholzer was in touch with a distant Oberholzer relative in the northern Transvaal and with some of the Orange Free State Oberholzers who are descendants of a pro-British Oberholzer who stayed behind at Fauresmith in the O F S when his more rebellious forebears moved further north to the Western Transvaal. This letter was written in 1984 but the last I heard from him was in 1997. - Barbara B Ford to Marinda Kotze, 6/28/2000; also a letter from Dr J J (signed Hannes Oberholzer), to John L Overholt of Kilmarnock VA on 11/12/1984, OFA Files

Due to the Apartheid movement in South Africa, many whites today are being persecuted to the point of leaving the country. Our family tie there was Pieter, and in the past year we have lost contact with him. Dr J J Oberholtzer has past away two years ago.

From the above notes, there can be gleaned some possibilities as to the immigration of both MV Marcus and Dr J J's ancestor. Both may have gone to England and stayed for some time. Reason for this is that South Africa was colonized by the British, about the time J J's ancestor went there. MV Marcus may have lived there also, spending a long enough period of time to drop the "o" sound from the German tongue. By the time they came to America, the non-German spelling of Aberholtz was the norm for them. And since both have some of the same bloodline, they may even have a common ancestor after leaving the village of Aathal or Oberholz. The only problem with this idea is that MV Marcus is said to have come from Oberholz, whereas J J's ancestor is said to have come from Aathal. But neither can be confirmed at his time, and like so much of the old information, generalities can obscure the details.

Death Certificates

Barbara Ford acquired the death certificates for some of the MV family before she passed away. They have not been looked at since 2009, as there is so much information to go through. Jan Williams of Hawaii wrote to me after the August 2008 Bulletin was released. She mentioned that George W Overholt's death certificate did not mention that he came from Ireland. She had sent along a copy of it, but it was only the upper portion of the certificate. Below is the full copy:

Mrs Lee R Overholt was the one who gave the information on George's parents. Lee R Overholt is the son of George W. Mrs Lee R Overholt's maiden name was Lydia R Galford. The date of George's birth in 1833 matches the genealogy records. But George's father, George William Overholt was born June 15, 1795 in Rockingham Co VA, and not Ireland as stated on the death certificate. Mrs Lee R Overholt had made a mistake in the generations when giving that info.

There was another mistake in the death certificates of this family. William H Overholt, youngest son of George William Overholt was born in 1841. His death certificate was signed by Mrs E W Hale of Princeton W. VA. Mrs Hale is MV404 Emma Gertrude Overholt, daughter of William H Overholt. She gave William's mother as Mary Stephens, which was correct. But she gave the father's name as Mark Overholt, which is his grandfather.

It seems rather odd that Emma married a lawyer, and yet made such a mistake. Yet we must remember that back in the early years of the United States, as well as today, families did most of their communications verbally. It is easy to mix spoken information, and here we have two examples from the same family.
